DEEP FREEZE HITS NORTH AMERICA

For the following days, the central and eastern United States will be experiencing record arctic air mass. The freezing temperatures which have now moved to the Northwest have taken away several lives.

Authorities have insisted people to stay home as the alarmingly low temperatures have left at least 13 people dead.

Two people in Detroit have died in the cold. A student of the University of Iowa was brought to the hospital from the campus and died.

According to authorities, an 82-year-old man from Illinois died a few hours after he was found lying in front of his house.

The freezing temperatures were supposed to get warmer but have ended up preventing flight travels and closing business and schools.

A storm that poured 20 inches of snow (51 centimeters) caused subzero temperatures and freezing wind blows in western New York. The chilly weather has affected areas from Buffalo to Brooklyn. The arctic cold has transferred to the Northeast.

The National Weather Service has cautioned those who go outdoors to cover themselves up, to not take deep breaths and not talk too much to prevent extremely cold air entering their lungs.

The weather conditions have reached freezing points due to polar vortex, a mass of freezing air which rotates around the North Pole but has transmitted to the United States. According to DW's Maya Schwayder, exposed skin would get "frostbite within minutes" and "even hair and eyeballs could freeze over."

Forecasters have reported that the chilly winds have caused temperatures in Dakotas, Wisconsin and Minnesota to fall until -70 Fahrenheit (-56.7 Celsius).

The temperature of Chicago morning has dropped to -22 degrees Fahrenheit (-30 Celsius), which was lower than Alaska's state capital and parts of Antarctica. The waters of Chicago River have frozen too.

On Thursday, 1359 flights were canceled, but weather conditions are expected to improve in the weekend.

Postal services could not deliver mails in some areas of Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, the Dakotas and Nebraska.

The coldest record will be made since January 1985 if temperatures drop to -27 degrees Fahrenheit (-30 Celsius).

Chicago officials stated on Monday that they encouraged 80,000 homeless to ask for help by dialing 311: hotline that "offers a range of services to assist some of Chicago's most vulnerable residents" like "shelter for homeless residents, warming centers, and well-being checks".

“Face of 9,000-year-old teenager reconstructed”

By Kim Minji

The summary of an article entitled, “Face of 9,000--year-old teenager reconstructed” by Sarah Gibbens (January 19, 2018) talks about Avgi, a teenager who lived in Greece around 7000 B.C. Her name, Avgi, is after a Greek term of ‘Dawn’, as she had lived around the time which was the ‘Dawn’ of civilization. Avgi’s skull was revealed by the researchers of University of Athens. After they reconstructed Avgi’s face, we could find out the ancient woman’s prominent cheekbones, heavy brow, and dimpled chin, though we aren’t sure how she lived or died. However, Avgi isn’t the first one whose face was brought back to life.

In 2010, they reconstructed the face of an Athenian Girl called Myrtis, who was 11-year-old. She was found out to have lived around 430 B.C. Though researchers aren’t so sure about Avgi’s death, they think that Myrtis died from typhoid in an epidemic that almost destroyed the 5th century Athens. Most researchers believe that our features had smoothened over thousands of years. Now, we look less masculine, both men and women. Analysis

First, I think, that the technology used is revolutionary and cutting-edge which is important to find answers to historical puzzles that have not yet been answered by science. I believe that making the project be led by Oscar Wilson was a wise decision because he specializes on reconstructing things. We can see that Avgi’s features are mostly tougher than the girls of her age now. I think this is because people in the past lived rougher lives than we do now. We prosper due to the development of technology, so our physical features ‘smoothened’ over time. I think Avgi died because she was used as a sacrifice to the Gods, as people in the past in Greece believed in gods and goddesses and sacrificed young girls or animals to them.

In my opinion, the softening of our features over thousands of years is a result of the industrial revolution which made us do less physical labor and made our lives comfortable. Finally, in the future I’d like to be reconstructed like Avgi because it would provide useful information to the people living in the future.

“Digital Cadavers are replacing real ones. But should they?”

By Min Ji Kim

SUMMARY

The National Geographic article titled, “Digital Cadavers are replacing real ones. But should they?” (December 18, 2018) talks about Digital Cadavers’ advantages and disadvantages. One of the important advantages of digital cadavers is the cost. For example, Jeffrey Fahl, the director for anatomy in the Las Vegas school for medicine, said that “To build a cadaver lab that met government safety and health regulations would have cost about $10 million. The six section tables that show the digital cadavers are $70,000 each”. Also, Digital cadavers are more useful than the real ones. One medical student might make a mistake while dissecting a dead body, damaging it forever. However, in the case of Virtual Reality, we can just click ‘reset’. Also, we can observe joint movements. In Digital Cadaver, their heart beats. In contrast, by dissecting real body, we can learn professionalism, team play, respect for death, and empathy. By dissecting it, we are writing a story of an individual. We would never be able to learn all these from a Digital Cadaver.

I’d prefer real ones because we should encounter real things anyway, when the medical students become doctors. People would not be virtual when it comes to surgeries. Medical students should overcome their fears about cadavers in order to perform well in the real world.

There are many ethical considerations about using real cadavers. For instance, It is because they are dissecting people who actually once lived. If they make a mistake, it might permanently destroy her body. Finally, I think medical schools should keep on using real cadavers because it can increase the medical students’ respect for death and learn teamwork.

The Myth of Thor’s Journey to the Land of the Giants

By Kim Min Seo

Life is a journey. It must go on. We must go on. But, we need to make life amazing and cool! We live in a world that is called reality. Now, I am going to bring you to another world where amazing and cool things happen. Today, a Greek mythological character will greet you in this journey. Who’s he? Thor!!!! Nevertheless, I am sure that you know him. Right? Thor, the son of Odin, god of thunder, and protector of mankind struggled mightily against his greatest challenge; yet the challenge is simply opening a bag of food.

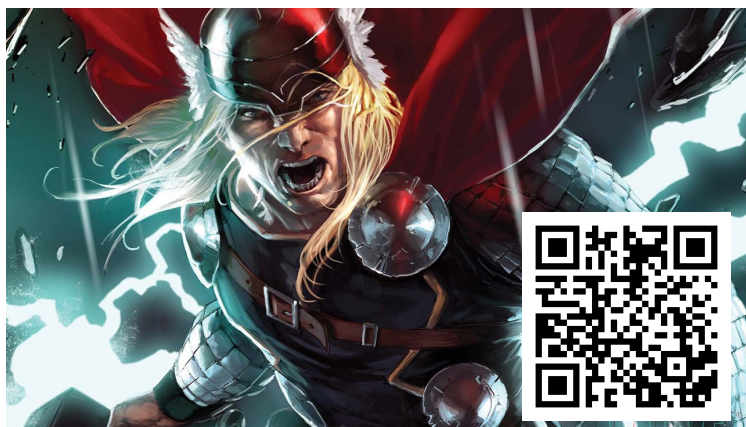

Thor’s story started with Thjalfi and Loki. They went on a journey to the land of the giants.

There, they met a giant called Skrymir. As they continue to travel, they reached a huge kingdom called Utgard. The King of Utgard gave some challenges to them. Three challenges were given. These are eating, running and drinking. In all these challenges, Loki, Thjalfi and Thor loss. All of them wanted a rematch and so the great King agreed. However, they still loss. Are you now curious why they didn’t win? Ok! Let’s continue the story.

As for the last challenge, Thor must lift the Utgard’s cat’s foot. But the cat was so, big. So, the king said to Thor that he just needs to win in an arm wrestling with an old woman. He used two hands but still he can’t win. Hence, the king forced them to get out of the kingdom. Honestly, this story is too magical that I need to explain to you each situations: Loki lose because Loki was the wild fire itself devouring everything in it’s path. Thjalfi couldn’t win Hugi because Hugi was the embodiment of thought which is always faster than action. Thor couldn’t win Elli which was the symbol of old age that weakens everyone eventually. As for other challenges there were tricks too. For example Thor was drinking the water inside the horn which was filled with ocean water. The cat was the serpent that encircles the world and Thor’s efforts shifted the earth. And Skrymir had been Utgard Loki in disguised. Well, now, it sounds really mythical. I hope your creative imagination is still working. Shall we continue? Now, Thor's hammer-blows to form valleys in the surrounding mountains. The giant congratulated them on their prowess which so frightened him he would never allow them in his land again. Thor and his companions failed the challenges presented to them. But in trying to achieve the impossible, they'd pushed themselves harder than ever before and changed the world in ways no one had expected. This is the story of Thor. The lesson of this story is we must be too proud of ourselves. We can sometimes fail – Nevertheless, we should still stand and continue our journey in life. This is Eric Kim from I Can Academy TED ED club, thank you very much.

The Myth of Prometheus

By Kim Geon Woo

Let me bring you to a new world; a world that has possibilities to almost everything. This is the world of mythological creatures. Today, I will be exposing to everyone the story of my favorite Greek Mythological Character; no other than, Prometheus. Do you know him? Cool! So, Why him and not the other more popular ones? Well, if you are really a fan of Greek Mythology, you may say that without him there will be no humans at all. So, basically we owe him our own history. What are we waiting for? Let's now begin!

Before the creation of humanity the Greek Gods won a great battle against the giants called Titans. Many of those Titans were driven to Tautarus except for a Titan called Prometheus, whose name means foresight. In fact, Zeus entrusted him with the task of creating all living things. Prometheus shaped the first human with mud that looks like the Gods but Zeus didn't agree and made humans mortal and must worship the Gods in mount Olympus. Because of this, Prometheus got the god's first warning but he didn't stop and he even gave the first fire to humans. Thus, Zeus was very annoyed and destroyed the fire. Prometheus refused to see his creatures suffering in cold temperatures so he climbed Mount Olympus to steal the fire from Zeus' kingdom and give it back to humans. While he was about to descend from the mountain, he hid the fire to the other gods and brought it back to humans; his well beloved creatures. Now, with fire, humans could take care of themselves.

Nonetheless, when Zeus looked down from his place, he realized what had happened. So he brought Prometheus into a mountain, hangs him and chained him there and as an additional punishment, every day, the vulture will go to where Prometheus is and eat his liver. And each night that his liver will grew back, because he is a titan and an immortal, he will still be attacked by the vulture forever every morning. Sounds really unfortunate, right?

In the end, for us humans, Prometheus can be considered as a hero. Prometheus remains a symbol of our capacity to capture the powers of nature, and he reminds us of the potential of individual acts to always set the world on fire! This is Alex Kim from ICAN TED ED CLUB. Thank you very much.

My Philosophy of a Happy Life

By Kim Ga Yun

Do you know Audrey Hepburn? She said that “the most important thing is to enjoy your life- to be happy. It’s all that matters.”

And I think it is important to have our own philosophy for a happy life.

My own philosophy to be happy is to accept everything positively in my life. Whenever I face any problem, I choose to be happy and look at the good side of things. This perspective has no difference with Sam Bern’s philosophy to be happy in his Ted speech.

Sam has a disease called Progeria which is very rare. His cell gets older faster because of abnormal protein in his blood. Even though he had many obstacles in his life, he was able to overcome this and make it the most of it.

The three philosophies he shared are as follows.

First he said that he doesn’t focus on the things he cannot do since he can do other things and focus his energy and passion to it. If he cannot do something like playing a snare drum at least he will make some ways to adjust it and if he could then it is in the CAN category.

Second, he surrounds himself with people he wants to be with. He has good family and good friends. These people provide him positive influence in his life and he wants to provide them positive effects too.

Third, he always tries to have something to look forward to that makes him focus and knows that there is a bright future ahead of him and may get him through some difficult times that he may experience.

In relation to this, scientific evidence suggests that being happy may have major benefits to your health.

Primarily, being happy promotes a healthy lifestyle. It may also help combat stress, boost your immune system, protect your heart and reduce pain.

What’s more, it may even increase your life expectancy.

While further research is required to understand how these effects work, there’s no reason you can’t start prioritizing your happiness now.

Focusing on the things that make you happy will not only improve your life — it may help extend it too.

Advertising: Boon or Bane?

By Kim Hyun Woo

Have you ever experienced this? “You are watching your favorite TV show. Suddenly, an ad comes out. What will you think?” Some people like ads and think they have more benefits than disadvantages. I do not agree with this. And when I am done giving my reasons, you might change your mind as well.

Commercials fool people. Have you ever seen nice products in ads? Suddenly, you might want to buy it, so you order it online. You can't wait to get it, and when it arrives, you jump to the door and open it. But you become disappointed because it's not exactly the same as you saw in the ad. Another example is food advertisements. Food stylists do not use edible ingredients to make food look better. Take a look at a simple hamburger. They only cook it a little bit to make the meat look plumper, and then they use a blowtorch to make it look appetizing. Another similar example is that they use mashed potatoes and margarine instead of ice cream. They make food look better to sell more food.

Commercials waste people's time. On one occasion, I went to see a movie and was waiting for it to start. The film didn't begin immediately and only ads came out. Because of this, the movie finished behind schedule, and I was late for my academy classes. Another experience was when I was waiting to see my favorite channel. Ads popped up too long and I spent too much time before I get to watch what I like. Because of these experiences, ads waste a lot of my time.

Finally, ads often result in people having financial problems. Are you familiar with the mental illness called “compulsive buying disorder?” This is when people buy unnecessary things just because they wanted to purchase them. There is a research about the relationship between commercials and ‘compulsive buying disorder’. They conducted an online survey of 582 Belgian consumers. Surprisingly, people who have positive attitudes toward advertising can lead to ‘compulsive buying disorder.’

To sum it up, I believe ads are trying to fool consumers. With my experiences, commercials have only tricked me, wasted my time and led people to financial problems. Therefore, I think ads are a bane.

Why Do Koreans Need to Study and Pass TOEIC?

By Shin Woo Jung

English has been a universal language so non-English speaking countries have sought proficiency. Especially Korea, of which has high enthusiasm for education, deems learning English as a necessity.

Universities and companies started to require high English proficiency scores. Therefore, Koreans become more determined and invest more time in passing standardized English proficiency tests like TOEIC, TOEFL, and IELTS.

I prefer taking the TOEIC since there are companies that only require reading and listening scores. Speaking and Writing Test scores are optional unlike TOEFL and IELTS. I am now doing by best to get a higher score with the aid of my teachers in I Can Academy.

The Benefits of Having A Younger Sibling

By Ma Eun Seo

Do you have a younger sibling? Having a younger sibling is sometimes bad, but most of the time it is good. The first benefit is your sibling will believe you forever, because he is family. The second benefit is that you won't ever be lonely. For example, when I want to play with someone, my sibling can play with me. The third benefit is you will be proud to help your sibling. Are you happy whenever you help someone? Then, do that to your sibling all the time! If you have a younger sibling, you will love him or her forever. It only shows that having a younger sibling has a lot of benefits!

Philippines by Kim Tae Hee

"It's more fun in the Philippines." This is the tagline that you can see in as soon as your plane lands in the Philippines. I must say, this country is not just fun, but it is also rich in culture and history.

Philippines is a country in South East Asia. This country has 3 major islands. The capital city of the Philippines, which is Manila, is found in Luzon. There you can find many popular sites, such as Rizal Park, Fort Santiago, and San Agustin church. The most famous landmark found in Manila is the Rizal Monument, which was built in 1953. It is a man-made monument built to remember the death of Philippine's national hero, Dr Jose Rizal. Fun fact. Dr. Jose Rizal is found in 1 Philippine peso coin for Filipinos to be reminded of his bravery and patriotism. He became Philippine's national hero after being executed by the Spaniards when he wrote letters as silent protest during the Spanish colonization in this country. In addition, there are many famous people who are Filipinos, such as the eight-division champion boxer Manny Pacquiao and the current Miss Universe title holder Catriona Gray.

Staying here in the Philippines did not just teach me English, but I also came across their wonderful history. Come and visit this beautiful country, Philippines.

Annyeong! by Park Jun Woo

South Korea is a country found in Asia. It's capital city Seoul is where I came from. This is the largest and most populous city in South Korea. Seoul is one of the cities with the most modern landmarks, including the N tower, 63 Building and Lotte World Tower.

Lotte World Tower, which is found in Seoul South Korea is verified by the Guinness World Records as the world's highest glass-floor observation deck. Amazing, isn't it?

Aside from the modern skyscrapers, there are also many historical places found in the capital, such as Hwaseong Fortress, Jongmyo Shrine and Gyeongbokgung Palace. One of my favorite places to visit is the statue of Admiral Yi Sun Shin, which can be found at the front of Gyeongbokgung Palace.

In addition, there are many famous actors who are Korean, such as Lee Byung Hun and Song Hye Kyo. There are also many worldwide famous groups who are Korean, including BTS and Twice.

Even though South Korea is small, this country offers so many activities that tourists and even locals love. Why don't you try to visit my country, South Korea? Annyeong-

Made in China By Gil Jun Seo

I am Korean who lives in China. I didn't grow up in this country, but this country is now my favorite place. Let me tell you why.

China, also known as the Sleeping Giant, is the largest of all Asian countries and has the largest population of any country in the world. Beijing is the capital city of China. There are many famous sites in Beijing, including The Forbidden City, the Imperial Palace and the Great Wall. The Great Wall is a man-made wall that holds a lot of titles including, one of the greatest sights in the world and the longest wall in the world. This was built as a defense to protect China from the intruders during the war.

There are many popular actors who are Chinese, including Bruce Lee and Jackie Chan. I'm sure you've heard of the famous actor, Jackie Chan. He is recognized in the acting career because he does the stunts in his movie by himself. We shouldn't forget one of the most influential philosophers of all time, Confucius.

All of the things I mentioned above are made in China. And I assure you that such tag can be seen in almost all the places in the world. Come and experience a cultural journey in this wonderful country.

HONG KONG: AN UNFORGETTABLE TRIP

Do you know Hong Kong? Hong Kong is one of the best countries in the world. This country is clean and great for relaxation. The food is delicious, too. I went to Hong Kong last month.

On the first day, I rode a double-decker bus. If you ride this bus, you will hear a narration about Harbor City's history using built-in earphones while watching the beautiful city view. I saw a Rolls-Royce, too. The car was handsome and cool. It was huge, too. I want to buy and drive one someday. Then, I went to a famous street in Hong Kong. I was so surprised. There were many expensive cars and high-end stores. I visited Gucci, ROLEX, and a lot more. I wanted to buy a Rolex watch, but it was too expensive. After window-shopping, I felt hungry, so I went to a restaurant. I ate some noodles. The restaurant was special because I could choose the toppings for the noodles. My noodles were spicy, but they were delicious, too. It was getting late, so I slept in the hotel thinking about my plan for tomorrow.

The next day, I visited Disneyland. It looked like a huge amusement park. I rode a roller coaster with Alex, Mike, and my mom. It was a bit dangerous and scary, but I enjoyed it. Then I rode the Viking ride. The Viking was very fast and long. I was scared, but I acted like a brave person. Next, I watched the Iron Man 4D, too. Everyone enjoyed it, but I felt that it was not good because a Chinese man was rude that distracted my viewing. He did not follow the rules. After watching, I was hungry, so I ate the Iron Man hamburger. It was tasty, I want to eat this hamburger once more. But I had to go back to the Philippines.

The trip was fun and interesting. I learned about Harbor City. I watched the beautiful cityscape and enjoyed the rides in Disneyland. I won't forget about this trip.

MY WONDERFUL HONG KONG JOURNEY

Yesterday, my family and Alex's went to Hong Kong. There are many beautiful, incredible, and unbelievable places. Hong Kong is one of the best countries in the world. In Hong Kong, the only uncomfortable thing is that they use Chinese.

First day, we rode a double-decker bus. The bus was huge. On its second floor, there was no roof, so it was very cold. Good thing, I wore thick clothes. I thought Hong Kong's temperature is colder than the Philippines'. When I looked around, the scenery was beautiful. There were many skyscrapers that made me excited. I think Hong Kong's environment is not really good because I see a lot of Hong Kong people smoking. At night, we went to a wonderful restaurant where we can choose ingredients for our food. I chose carefully because it might spoil the taste. Luckily, my food was delicious. I wanted to go once again.

On the second day, we went to Disneyland. There were many people, so it was noisy. Also, lines were very long. When we got inside there was a very big castle. First, we rode a rollercoaster. I was angry because someone was cutting the line. When I rode the rollercoaster, the rollercoaster turned left and right, I felt dizzy. Also, I got a headache. Second, I watched a 4D movie. The movie was Iron Man. I was disappointed because it was not realistic. I think my 4D glasses were not good. Lastly, I watched the Lion King musical show. It was really wonderful. When they sang Hakuna Matata, I felt so excited because I knew that song. It was indeed a wonderful journey that I want to visit it again someday.

The World in 2050

By Lee Hye Min

Have you ever thought about the future? In the future, many people think the world will be better than now, but in the future, there will be problems as well. Hence, the world in 2050 will do more harm than good.

First, smartphones will not be popular at all. I think many people will use smart glasses instead of smartphones. Nowadays, smart phones are considered crucial and accessible for people. Probably, in the future, they will demand more comfortable and convenient gadgets. This will result in addiction to digitalization. Hence, smart glasses may never be a good thing in spite of its advantages. I hope that scientists and experts must look into those high-technology gadgets more carefully to lessen their drawbacks.

Second, the Earth will be more polluted than now. The waste and overuse of disposable products are contaminating our planet. Smokes from car use are also polluting our Earth. As time passes, the world is getting worse and worse in which people cannot live there anymore. If so, they have to go to other planets, but not all planets are livable. Therefore, we must protect our planet from pollutions. For example, we can reduce the use of disposable products. At first, it will be challenging and difficult, but if we continue doing it, we can prevent the Earth from getting worse. If that happens, the next generation can utilize the natural resources and enjoy the beauty of the environment.

Finally, my worst prediction is that many people will commit suicide because of stress. I think almost everyone will have stress because of their jobs, schooling and other burden or pressure. This may lead to killing themselves to relieve their stress. Stress and problems in people's lives are just challenges that can make them stronger. However, if the world becomes full of sorrow and sadness, there's a big chance that in 2050, there will be a lot of people that can die because of stress.

To sum up, Mahatma Gandhi once said. "The future depends on what we do in the present." The present time is more important than future because the present shapes the future. We should not wait for 2050 to make our world a better place to live in. We need to act now.

When I grow up, I want to be...

By Cho Seo Hyun

What do you want to be when you grow up? As for me, I want to be a cartoonist. A cartoonist is a person who makes a cartoon. They draw pictures and make a story. I want to be a cartoonist because of the following reasons:

To begin with, I want to be a cartoonist because they entertain people. If they watch my cartoon shows and enjoy them, the whole world will be full of happiness and joy. Also, my cartoon show can connect people. After reading my masterpiece, they start sharing their ideas and become friends. My work can make a joyful world.

In addition, I want to be a cartoonist because drawing pictures is interesting. People commonly work in the office to make projects, work in computers, and manage other people. In contrast, cartoonists draw pictures and make a story. It is definitely enjoyable and fun to do.

At last, I want to be a cartoonist because I want to make children happy and creative. If they do not have any dreams, their lives will not have any directions, but if they have a dream, they will be enlightened and their future would be bright. To have a dream, they should be creative. If children watch my cartoon shows, they will have an opportunity to realize their dreams. It will be absolutely wonderful.

In conclusion, I want to be a cartoonist when I grow up. To be a famous cartoonist, I need to be creative, humorous, and smart. Overall, I hope my dream can come true.

My Greatest Accomplishments

By Oh Ji Yoon

An accomplishment is the thing that you did and be proud of. I have had many accomplishments such as winning the prizes in a piano contest, being a main relay race at my school and being a book queen.

I went to a piano contest in third grade at school. When I entered the contest hall, I saw many contestants who were older than me and their parents. When it was my turn, I went in front of the piano, and I was a bit worried, but I thought I did well. And when, I was finished playing it, I saw my mom, my dad, my grandparents, and aunt's family. They told me that I did it. But at first, I didn't notice it. When they said to me that I won a prize, I was very happy. The prize was a Beethoven trophy. I took a picture with it, and I got 10,000 won. My next goal of joining the piano contest is winning 200,000 won.

Next, I was the fastest girl in my class, so I became a main relay racer in third grade. I went to school sport field to get ready for racing. I was the last racer in my team. My team was behind, but I ran faster, and I became in front of another team. Our team won, and my team was very proud of me. They kept saying that I was their hero. So, I was proud of myself, too. My next goal is being a relay racer next year again.

Lastly, when I was in first grade at my school, I read many books. I read 230 books every six months because I read 20 books each day. Finally, I became a book queen in my class, but normally, the children in my class usually read under 150 books in every six months, so I was dubbed as a "book queen" because I like reading books so much. As a prize, I got a cute and pretty pencil. My next goal in the future is to read more books.

In conclusion, I am very proud of myself because I have done a good job. This year, I am aiming for another great accomplishment.

Someone I Admire

By Choi Geon Woo

Everybody has their own idol or a person that they admire or look up to. In my case, my dream is to become a president, and now the president of Korea is Moon, Jae In, so I admire him due to the following reasons.

First, he has made military rules and laws. For example, he has increased the salary of the workers. I think the way he implemented the rules is great because he was a former lawyer. Second, he is a peacemaker of Korea because he has met the North Korean president, Kim, Jung Eun, three times. It is the biggest accomplishment that a Korean president has done. Among the previous presidents, he is the only one who attempted to unite the North and South Korea. Third, he is good at knowing and providing solutions to the problems of our society. He helps many people and works hard for Korean people.

Therefore, Moon Jae In is the person that I admire the most because he has good qualities to be a great leader.

How to Keep Fit

By Yoon Ji Won

Do you want to get fit? Here are the ways to be healthy.

First, exercise every day. It will help you prevent from being fat, but too much exercising is not advisable. When you have too much exercise, you will get very sick.

Second, do not eat junk food. Many people love junk food, but it is not good for your health. When you eat junk food, you will get fatter and fatter like a pig! When I was in second grade, one boy ate a lot of junk food, so his cheeks got fatter. I saw him and realized that I should not eat a lot of junk food. It is important to keep our body healthy.

Lastly, sleep early. When you sleep late, you will get exhausted the next day. Also, you will not have enough energy, so you can't probably go to school. And when you want to play, you cannot because you do not have enough power. Therefore, sleeping early is very important. In conclusion, when you want to be fit, you need to exercise every day, avoid eating junk food and have an adequate sleep.

Alice in Wonderland

By Lim Seung Yeon

Once upon a time, there was a girl named Alice. She lived in the magical forest. Alice wanted to go to the city but she didn't know the way.

"I wish I could get some help." Alice said.

One day, she met a rabbit and a bird. She told them her wish.

The rabbit and the bird said, "We know the way to go to the city!"

Alice went to the city and lived there. She thanked the rabbit and the bird as they went back to the magical forest.

The Race

By Kim Ji Woo

A rabbit and a tortoise were very good friends. One day, they decided to have a race in the woods. The rabbit was feeling proud while the tortoise just laughed. The greedy rabbit stopped and ate a lot of carrots and fell asleep. But the tortoise continued walking and never stopped. In the end, the tortoise was so happy to win the race. The rabbit didn't win and felt ashamed.

BORI THE ICE PRINCESS

author: Lee Yoon Seul

Once upon a time, there was a girl named Bori. She looked very pretty and she was very famous. She lived in an ice castle. Everyone knew that she was Elsa's, the queen of ice, daughter. A lot of people wanted to be Bori's friend but Elsa didn't want to let her go out. So, she decided to run away one night while Elsa was sleeping. She ran far far away as fast as she could. Next morning, Elsa noticed that she was not there. She got sick, and she put up "Lost and Found" posters all throughout the kingdom. People wanted to find Bori but she was already in a far away forest where she met an honest boy. He was poor, but he was very honest so Bori wanted to be his friend. What she did was, she brought Suro back in the palace and he agreed to come with her.

While they were in front of castle, Elsa welcomed Bori with open arms. After hugging her daughter, Elsa asked who the boy she brought home was. Bori said he is her bestfriend and she wanted him to live with her in the castle and if Elsa won't agree, she will run away with him. Therefore, Elsa agreed to what she asked for. So, Bori lived in the castle again with her bestfriend, Suro, and Elsa lived healthy again. At the end, they all lived happily ever after.

If I were a knight, I would save all the countries in the world. I would save horses, kings, queens and castles. I would wear a suit and helmet and use a sword and shield. I would also catch bad people.

DOGS

By: Hong Da Hee

The dog is a slender, muscular animal with four long legs and a bushy tail. Dogs are covered with fur that is usually a similar color all over its body or speckled. There are different breeds of dogs like Poodles and Shih Tzus.

Dogs eat raw meat, fish, vegetables and rice. Not everything people eat is good for dogs like chocolate, milk and lactose.

Dogs live in many habitats, including deserts, grasslands, forests, rainforests, coastal regions and arctic zones. We can also see them in roads and houses.

Dogs want a private place when giving birth to puppies – baby dogs. Puppies need their mom's milk.

Dogs are man's best friend but there are people who kill dogs for their meat. Some people treat them badly, even though they show them kindness.

Dogs are helpful to humans. They give them enjoyment. People should show love to dogs just like what dogs show to them.

The Mysterious Door

By: Lee Jee Min

"Sana! Momo! Look at the tree. There's a light!" Mona said. "Don't lie, okay.", they said. But Mona really saw a light coming out of the tree.

It was late afternoon the triplets were going to their secret hide out. They always went in afternoon but that was first time Mona saw the light coming out of the big tree. However, they ignored. But, Mona couldn't forget that tree. So in evening, Mona went there.

When she opened the door, she saw hundreds of dwarfs and a lot of things in small size! But the most concerning thing is that the place was in chaos. A big old troll was destroying the place.

A scared dwarf went to Mona and said, "Human, help us." So Mona, even though confused, went to attack the troll. She fought the troll and captured it.

All the dwarfs thanked her. She became the hero to the dwarfs and they became friends.

Mona thought, if she didn't believe in magic, the dwarfs would've have died. So she decided not to tell her sisters about her short adventure. For now, she will keep it a secret.

I WISH

By: Ryu Hyun Ji

I wish I have a dog.

I wouldn't have to meander around by myself.

I would run happily with my dog.

I wish I have lots of books.

I would carry them as my best friend.

I would have friends to share my secret.

I wish I have a magic stick.

I would use my magic stick to help many people.

I would be a person who is like a fairy.

I wish I could do many things,

But the thing that I wish the most is to make my family happy.

Wouldn't It Be Nice if the World were Made of Sweets?

By: Ryu Chae Won

Wouldn't it be nice
Wouldn't it be nice
If the world was surrounded with sweets?

Now you don't need any money
Because all you see is free
All non-living things are sweets
Buy other things that you wanted
This is an awesome world indeed for you and me'

The hobo won't be hungry
The children will be happy
The wall is made of chocolate
The taste is made of jelly beans

Mmmm...

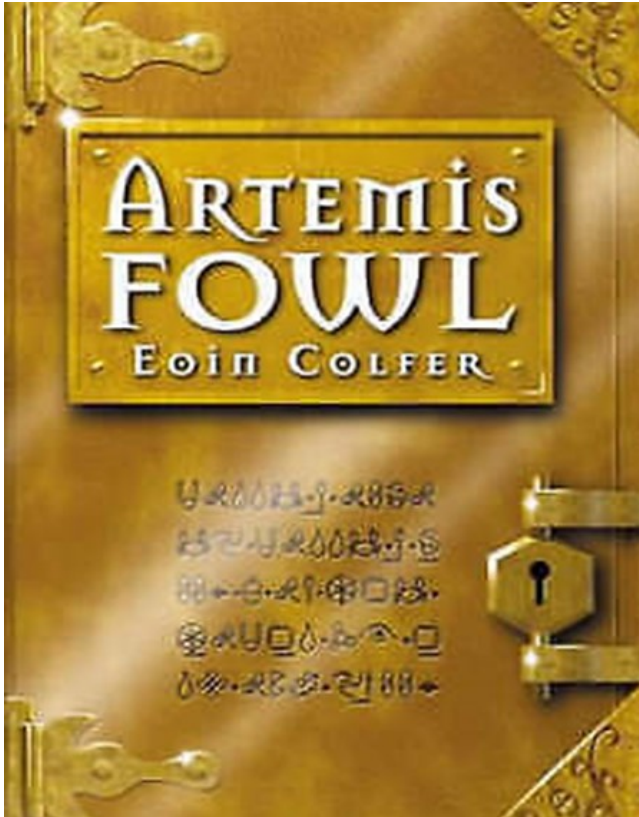

It is sweet

I wish I live in this world

Brief Summary

Artemis Fowl is the first book in the Artemis Fowl series. It is a story of a 12 year old evil genius named Artemis himself. Being the second in line in the family of mafia, he wanted to save his family's fortune. With the help of his manservant, Butler, they plotted a scheme, which is to kidnap a fairy, in exchange for gold. To Artemis's luck, he captured a fairy officer named Holly Short. The fairy world, with all the advancement in technology and the use of magic, did all their might to rescue her without compromising and negotiating with the captor. However, it didn't go the way fairies wanted it to be. That's where the fun kicks in.

Review

Holly Short is the best character and had the best part in the story. Everyone had a good laugh after she punched Artemis. We all waited for her revenge on Artemis and we were surprised that a punch in the face was all she did. For us, that punch won't suffice, but she felt a great pleasure after that. Aside from that, the gender stereotype was overcome by Holly when she, being the first female officer, successfully did a mission and got praised by it, as well as managed to escape from her cell without the help of any fairy.

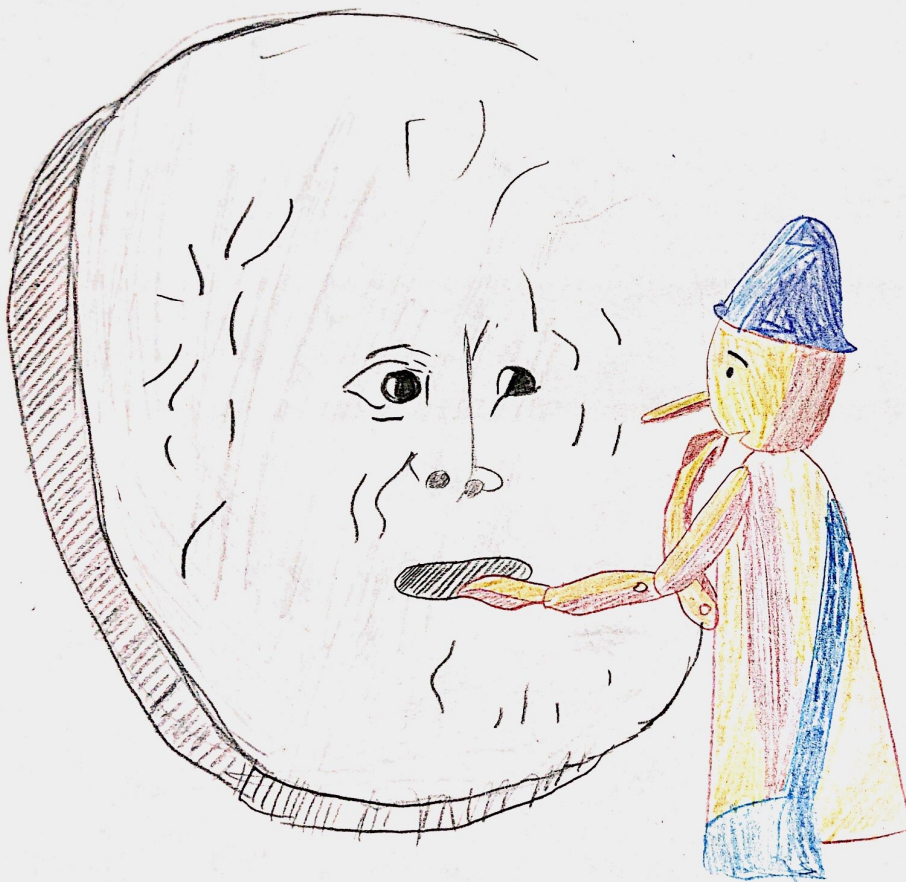

There were a lot of uncertainties when we first read the book. Aside from the fact that the book has a lot of pages, we were overwhelmed with the amount of unfamiliar words we encountered while reading it. We were also confused with the plot since it kept on going back and forth between the real world and the fairy world. Despite all those and the fact that the author used a very chirped and pithy tone of writing, it amuses us how frivolity and humor was present in every chapter.

The Artemis Fowl is packed with adventure and mystery that makes it so unexpectedly interesting to read. If you are about to be 12 or more than 12 years of age and ready for some adventures, this fantastic book is perfect for you.
